

to the all-pro team. Korey was more than an all-pro football player; he was an all-pro human being. He made Minnesota his year-round home, and he was one of the Vikings' most active community members.

He established his "Korey's crew" community service program at several local schools and libraries. He served as an outstanding leader, mentor, and role model for many Minnesota youngsters and adults.

Minnesota has lost one of our best citizens at the tragically early age of 27. Our hearts and our deepest sympathies go out to his wife Kelcie, his 3-year old son Kodie, and the rest of his family.

Korey, we will miss you. Rest in peace.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. BRIGITTE HANES

Mr. THURMOND. Madam President, I know that my colleagues are aware of the excellent services provided by the military liaison offices of the Senate. For many years military and civilian liaison officers have given invaluable assistance in the areas of constituent services, military issues, and fact-finding visits.

One of these liaison officers is Mrs. Brigitte Hanes. During the past nine years she has worked tirelessly solving the problems of soldiers and their families who have asked for help from their Senators.

The wife of an Army officer, Brigitte raised two daughters before embarking on her own career. First, she served on the staff of the Commander in Chief of the Joint Forces in Korea. Then she was the Personal Affairs Coordinator for foreign military students at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth. Brigitte and her husband moved to Washington in 1991. It was December of that year that she went to work in the Army Senate Liaison Office.

She gained a reputation around the Senate as a very reliable person. Few people are more widely known and respected than Brigitte. She is known throughout the Senate as an expert in dealing with a range of constituent issues relating to the Army and many other military matters.

When I needed to get something done I would call Brigitte. For example: she arranged for the shipment of a wheel chair from a Senator's office to the mayor of a town in Bosnia. In fact she delivered it to Andrews Air Force Base herself to start it on its way. She talked to a deserter and although he was afraid, she convinced him to turn himself in to Army authorities. She talked a soldier into boarding a plane for Korea. He had called his mother from the airport and told her he was not going to get on the plane. She called the Senator's aide who put in a conference call to Brigitte. She got two years incapacitation pay for a Reservist whose unit administrator had been unable to get it for him.

In addition to her vast casework load she organized and escorted Senate staffers on very informative orientation visits to military posts where they could see the Army at work.

She has been honored repeatedly by her superiors who recognized what a valuable resource they had in Brigitte.

We will miss her support in the Army Senate Liaison Office when she leaves at the end of August to accept a promotion in the office of the Chief of Army Reserves' Legislative Liaison Office.

I would like to say thank you to Brigitte for her nine years of devoted service to the Senate and to wish her success and happiness in her new endeavor.

THE NATIONAL YOUTH SCIENCE CAMP

Mr. REED. Madam President, every summer the senior Senator from West Virginia, Mr. BYRD, hosts a luncheon for the participants of the National Youth Science Camp.

This is a distinguished collection of high school students from every State in the Nation who have demonstrated exceptional abilities in the fields of science and technology. They participate in a two-week science camp in Green Bank, WV, and, afterwards, spend several days touring Washington, D.C. Their time in the Nation's capital culminates in the luncheon hosted by Senator BYRD.

At this year's luncheon, held in the Russell Caucus Room on July 19, Senator BYRD was introduced by a member of the board of the National Youth Science Foundation, Mr. Charles McElwee.

When Mr. McElwee introduced Senator BYRD at the luncheon, I was impressed. He recognized the remarkable accomplishments of the senior Senator from West Virginia: that Senator BYRD has served in the Senate for more than 42 years, has been elected to 8 consecutive 6-year Senate terms, and has held more Senate leadership positions than any other Senator in history.

Next, he referred to Senator BYRD's knowledge of Senate Rules, the Constitution, and the Bible, and his prolific writings on the histories of the U.S. Senate and the Roman Senate.

Mr. McElwee then proceeded to challenge the young, budding scientists "to make the most of [their] natural minds, as has Senator BYRD."

I consider this powerful introduction of Senator BYRD a touching example of how one of Senator BYRD's constituents feels about him. It highlights the esteem in which he is held by his fellow West Virginians, and I want to share it with my colleagues. Therefore, I ask that Mr. McElwee's introduction of Senator BYRD be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

INTRODUCTION OF HON. ROBERT C. BYRD, U.S. SENATE LUNCHEON FOR NATIONAL YOUTH SCIENCE CAMPERS

(By Charles McElwee)

How do I introduce a person before whom I stand in awe? How do I introduce and pay tribute to West Virginia's most respected and admired elected public official in the State's history? How do I make the introduction and hold the attention of youth, our guest science campers, when decades separate us in age? I resolved to try by relating the mind and accomplishments of our esteemed speaker to the minds and aspirations of our youthful listeners.

I commence by way of a reference to a renowned mathematician, John Forbes Nash, Jr. Nash was born and reared in Bluefield, West Virginia. He is recognized as a genius in mathematics, especially in game theory, for which he was awarded the Nobel Prize in Economics in 1994. His recent biographer has described Nash as having "A Beautiful Mind" and has given that title to her biography of him.

While I stand among a hundred, young, beautiful minds, I introduce a man with a singularly beautiful mind who has cultivated, developed and used his natural endowment to its fullest potential. I speak of the Honorable ROBERT C. BYRD, the senior United States Senator from your host state, the State of West Virginia, and your host for this luncheon today.

Senator BYRD has served in the United States Senate for more than 42 years and was reelected in 2000 to an unprecedented eighth consecutive six-year Senate term. He has held more leadership positions in the Senate than any other Senator in history, and presently serves as Chairman of the powerful Senate Committee on Appropriations.

Senator BYRD is a lawyer, having obtained his J.D. degree cum laude after ten years of study in night classes in law school, making him the only sitting member of either House of Congress to begin and complete law degree studies while serving in Congress.

I have already told you enough to establish that Senator BYRD is a man with a great mind and substantial achievements. But I don't want to stop there because I want to use this brief occasion of introduction to challenge you to make the most of your natural gifts of beautiful minds, just as Senator BYRD has done. Let me illustrate what a beautiful mind can accomplish when it is disciplined and applied.

(Holding up a copy of the United States Constitution.) Senator BYRD carries with him at all times when discharging his public duties a copy of the United States Constitution. His knowledge of this document is, in my opinion, unsurpassed by any other member of the Senate. He qualifies as a constitutional lawyer and scholar. In fact, Senator BYRD shared with another the first "We the People" award presented by the National Constitution Center to a constitutional scholar, who had demonstrated his love of, and concern for, the United States Constitution.

(Holding up a copy of the Bible.) Senator BYRD's knowledge of the Bible, King James version, is stupendous. He can recite from memory dozens of passages from both the Old and New Testaments. But more importantly, he and Erma, his beloved wife of sixty-four years, have shaped their lives to conform with biblical precepts.

(Holding up a copy of one of Senator Byrd's favorite poems, "The Bridge Builder.") Senator BYRD has an immense knowledge of English and American literature and has committed to memory a great store of verse. Two of his favorite poems are "The Bridge Builder" and "Fence or An Ambulance." Both refer to youth like you. In the first, an old man has crossed over a deep and perilous chasm. Although he would never pass that way again, he stopped to build a bridge to span the cleft. Upon being asked why, the old man explained:

There followeth after me today,
A youth whose feet must pass this way.
This chasm which was but naught to me
To that fair youth may a pitfall be.

The second of the poems has this wise counsel: "Better guide well the young than reclaim them when old." The stewardship which Senator BYRD believes that adults have for the welfare and development of the young is evident in his most beloved verses.

(Holding up one volume of four volumes written by Senator Byrd on "The Senate, 1789–1989.") These four volumes are a virtual encyclopedia of Senate History. There is probably no person alive who knows the history and parliamentary rules of the United States Senate better than Senator BYRD.

(Holding up a copy of "The Senate of the Roman Republic.") This volume is a compilation of fourteen addresses delivered on the floor of the Senate by Senator BYRD over five and a-half months on the History of Roman Constitutionalism in opposition to the proposal for a line-item presidential veto. The important point here is that he delivered each of these fourteen speeches, which were packed with names, dates, and complex narratives, entirely from memory and without recourse to notes or consultations with staff aides.

The author of the Foreword of "The Senate of the Roman Republic" has described the book and the lectures compiled these as displaying "vast learning, prodigious memory, and single-minded determination. . . ." And so it is that Senator BYRD has used his beautiful mind to accumulate vast learning, to develop a prodigious memory, and to challenge himself at all times with a single-minded determination.

But it has not been his mind, or his learning, or his memory that has endeared Senator BYRD to the people of West Virginia. Their affection of him is attributable to his public service and to his sincere interest in their lives and concern for their welfare. No member of the United States Congress or of the Senate of the Roman Republic has served his other constituency with more distinction than has Senator BYRD.

We have talked about Senator BYRD's great mind, his learning, his memory, his discipline, his determination, his public service, and his interest in people, all superb attributes of which we stand in awe. Yet there is one trait which I have not mentioned. Senator BYRD referred to it in a speech he gave last week on the floor of the Senate.

After cajoling his colleagues that the business of the Senate requires more than a three-day work week, Senator BYRD said that he would just as soon be in the Senate "as to be at home on Saturday mopping the floor." "Yes," Senator BYRD said, "I mop the bathroom. I mop the kitchen floor. I mop the utility room. I vacuum. I dust. I even clean the commodes around my house." Add then Senator BYRD added, "It is good for me. It keeps me humble."

Humility is the eighth, and perhaps the finest, characteristic of our Senator BYRD. And so I implore, you, our guest science campers, to use your good minds with humility. If mopping floors will help you to be humble, then mop floors.

Senator BYRD has been a long-time supporter of the National Youth Science Camp in West Virginia and has sponsored this luncheon for many years. Will you please join with me in applauding Senator BYRD as a way of expressing our gratitude.

AGREEMENT TO PROCEED TO THE EXPORT ADMINISTRATION ACT ON OR AFTER SEPTEMBER 4, 2001

Mr. SHELBY. Madam President, I rise to add some clarification to the unanimous consent agreement which will allow the Senate to proceed to consideration of the Export Administration Act (S. 149) with 2 days of debate. In discussions with Senator THOMPSON, he related to me that he was working with leadership on both sides to form an agreement in which we would permit S. 149 to be considered on or after September 4th, but that myself and Senators THOMPSON, KYL, WARNER, and HELMS would be guaranteed 2 days to present, debate and have votes on our national security related amendments. This agreement will give the Senate time to consider amendments that I believe will make this bill better for our national security. I look forward to a healthy debate and exchange of views.

LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2001

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Madam President, I rise today to speak about hate crimes legislation I introduced with Senator KENNEDY in March of this year. The Local Law Enforcement Act of 2001 would add new categories to current hate crimes legislation sending a signal that violence of any kind is unacceptable in our society.

I would like to describe a terrible crime that occurred April 19, 1992 in Methuen, Massachusetts. Two men who had been harassing a group of women as they left a gay bar allegedly beat two women. The men were charged with assault and battery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

I believe that government's first duty is to defend its citizens, to defend them against the harms that come out of hate. The Local Law Enforcement Enhancement Act of 2001 is now a symbol that can become substance. I believe that by passing this legislation, we can change hearts and minds as well.

THE 125TH ANNIVERSARY OF COLORADO STATEHOOD

Mr. CAMPBELL. Madam President, 125 years ago today, on August 1, 1876, President Ulysses S. Grant issued a proclamation declaring Colorado a state. Today, I want to honor that anniversary by highlighting some thoughts about Colorado—the beauty of its landscape, the pioneering spirit of its people, and the engines that fuel its prosperity.

My home State of Colorado is a very special place. We have a rich and colorful history. We are blessed by geography and climate. We are culturally diverse, highly educated and highly motivated.

The movement to settle Colorado began in the late 1850's when prospectors found gold along Cherry Creek near Denver. Gold hunters rushed into the area and "Pikes Peak or Bust" became the slogan of the day. The gold didn't last, but the potential for prosperity and an unmatched quality of life did.

It was not until about 20 years later, however, that Colorado, after several failed attempts, became a state. A new mining boom brought wealth and growth to Colorado again. This time it was silver, not gold, that caused the growth.

In the 125 years since, Colorado has been marked by a series of economic booms and busts. Right now, we have one of the most diversified economies in the Nation. Colorado has grown from a primarily agricultural and mining State to a hub of technological and industrial development for the Nation. An increasing number of high-tech companies are choosing to locate in Colorado; the communications industry is revolutionizing how we stay in touch with one another; and Colorado's mild dry climate and colorful Old West history have made tourism the second largest industry in the State.

Colorado is one of the Nation's major outdoor recreation areas. Few States offer as many sporting opportunities. We fish and camp along pristine rivers and lakes. River-running and whitewater rafting are important summer activities. And we in Colorado enjoy some of the best skiing in the world. We bike, we hike, and we run—and we use one of the most extensive urban bikeways and trail systems in the Nation. One of the top 10k races in the United States—the Bolder Boulder—draws record crowds of world-class runners and area residents. And, the 14,000 foot peaks in Colorado, all 54 of them, bring mountain climbers of all ages and skills to our State.

And, we in Colorado don't just participate in sports—we also play the part of spectator. Our capital city of Denver is the home of five major professional sports teams—baseball, football, basketball, soccer and hockey—making it a major-league sports town.

Colorado's vibrant cultural scene rivals that of any in the world. We have a variety of theatrical, musical and other cultural attractions. Colorado is the home of the Aspen Institute, the Aspen Music Festival and the Central City Opera. Denver has three nationally known theaters and the State boasts a comprehensive network of public libraries, museums, community theaters and orchestras. Most towns and cities have local festivals to celebrate unique cultural traditions.

The cultural diversity of our population gives Colorado many of its greatest traditions and treasures. Colorado is home to two Native American tribes, the Southern Ute and the Ute Mountain Ute tribes. The land they inhabit covers the southwestern corner of Colorado, abutting the borders with Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

Some of our earliest settlers came to Colorado from Mexico and settled in
